Foreword by Elisabeth Sieca-Kozlowski, Chief Editor (2nd Issue Editor)

- 1 I am pleased to introduce to you our second issue.
- 2 This publication explores police transformations in post-Communist societies.
- 3 This issue includes an overview of police reforms in Central and Eastern Europe by Marina Caparini and Otwin Marenin, an article devoted to reforms in Ukrainian militia by Adrian Beck, a contribution of Maria Los exploring several aspects of the privatization of the state security apparatus in Poland and finally an article written by Nikolai Petrov offering an analysis of elites changes in the spatial organisation of the Russian power ministries as they were affected by the federal reform (please read Gilles Favarel-Garrigues' presentation of these contributions in the next document).
- 4 The issue also presents a number of reviews of recent French, Russian and English books:
- Anne Wulleumier reviews (in French) a collective book edited by Gilles Favarel-Garrigues linked to this issue's topic;
 - David Betz reviews Knoph's book "Civilian control of the Russian state forces";
 - Anna Lebedev reviews a book titled "Armia I Ia": a collection of documents gathered by Soldiers' mothers organization in Saint Petersburg;
 - Elena Zdravomyslova reviews a book written by Amy Caiazza on the role of gender and citizenship ideologies in contemporary Russia;
 - the book reviewed by Amandine Regamey ("My byli na etikh voynakh") is part of a research project led by Iakov Gordin on the history of the Russian-Caucasian wars of the 19th and 20th centuries. This book is the first one about the 20th century.
 - Youri Vavokhine reviews a recent book by ethnologist Ekaterina Yefimova on the prison as a "marginal" subculture, as well as the Russian criminal tattoo encyclopedia.
- 5 Many thanks to all who contributed to this issue !
- 6 We look forward to hearing from readers and potential contributors to future issues. Please consult the pipss web page for deadlines, style guidelines and other information for contributors.
